A Century-Old Family Favourite

Horses have featured in Stanley Park for well over a century.

At first, miners and loggers used them for hauling and clearing trails. In fact, some of the park's existing trails were cleared by logging companies. (Oxen were used, too.) Not long after the park was dedicated in 1889, a gentler use for horses began.

A century later, the clip-clop of horses still echoes in the park. Some of these gentle giants stand 2.4 m tall, have feet the size of frying pans, and consume 27 kg of food and 100 L of water a day.

Stanley Park Horse-Drawn Tours has been transporting people around the park in these colourful trams since the early 1980s. The trams today are designed with the comfort of the horses in mind, using a freestanding tongue and aluminum frame. They have some features the old Tally-Ho drivers would find astonishing, including signal lights and hydraulic brakes.

But one thing hasn't changed, these are still 'organically powered' vehicles, running on hay and oats: a fun, environmentally friendly way to see the jewel of Vancouver.

One Hour Narrated Tour
Daily March 1 - November 12

Getting Here

- DRIVING From Vancouver, take Georgia Street or Beach Avenue and follow signs. From the North Shore, take Lions Gate Bridge (Hwy 99) and exit at Park Drive. Park Drive is one-way.
- PAY PARKING Pay parking is in effect in most areas of the park. Buy tickets at pay stations for hourly or all-day parking. For the totem poles area, The Teahouse, Prospect Point and Brockton Point, parking is by-the-hour only (no day rates available).
- TRANSIT Public transit services Stanley Park from points throughout the Lower Mainland. Several routes serve the perimeter of the park and the No. 19 stops near the Rose Garden and Malkin Bowl. translink.ca
- TOUR BUSES Several tour bus companies include full-service and hop-on/hop-off tours of the park as part of their city tours.
- WALKING The park is within easy walking distance from downtown and the West End. The Seawall is a popular walking route.

Getting Around

- WALK, BIKE, OR BLADE The best way to see the park is up-close and on your own schedule. The Seawall runs counter-clockwise around the perimeter of the park and several roads, trails and paths connect the many points of interest. Bike and rollerblade rentals are just outside the park on Denman near Georgia Street, and on Davie Street.
- CARRIAGE TOUR Stanley Park Horse-Drawn Tours offers one-hour narrated tours of the park's eastern side. Buy tickets next to the Information Booth by the Georgia Street entrance. Operating March 1 to November 12 daily, rain or shine.
- UNIVERSAL ACCESS Many facilities and attractions, including the Stanley Park Horse-Drawn Tours, Seawall, Beaver Lake and Ravine Trails, are wheelchair accessible. The Stanley Park Train has a wheelchair accessible car.
- STANLEY PARK SHUTTLE The Vancouver Trolley Co. offers a narrated hop-on/hop-off tour to 15 stops around the park, June 7 to September 4.

Vancouver's Stanley Park

Forest

The Seawall

Stanley Park is consistently ranked No. 1 in the world! And the spectacular 9-km Seawall—the city's most popular recreation spot—is a huge part of that: stunning views of the downtown skyline, Lions Gate Bridge, English Bay, sandy beaches and lush, old-growth forest. Paved and mainly flat, the Seawall is divided for your safety: one side for pedestrians; the other for cyclists/roller bladers. Use caution on busy summer days.

STATS
 World's longest uninterrupted waterfront path
Length 26 km (16 mi) Seaside Greenway is an uninterrupted pathway, including the Seawall, that extends from the Vancouver Convention Centre to the foot of Trafalgar St.
Around Stanley Park 9 km (5.5 mi)
Walk 2-3 hours Bike 1 hour

Buds and Blooms

Stanley Park gardeners have been planting unusual and exotic plants, trees and shrubs for years. There are many gorgeous gardens throughout the park, at their showiest from June to October. See vancouver.ca/stanleyparkgardens for what's in bloom when.

Ted & Mary Greig Rhododendron Garden blooms from March through early summer. The 1920 Rose Garden has grown in number to 3,500 showy shrubs! Around the Rose Garden and Stanley Park Pavilion, the beautiful gardens showcase bulbs in spring, and perennials and annuals in summer. The Shakespeare Garden plays homage to the Bard—45 trees mentioned in his plays and poems grow here. The Rock Garden is the city's first public garden, finished in 1920. → Map

Welcome!

Stanley Park is one of the great urban parks of the world, with 400 hectares of west coast rainforest, manicured lawns, lush gardens, sports fields, quiet trails, Seawall, stunning views, beautiful beaches and a host of cultural attractions. Take an hour, a day, or a lifetime to explore this national historic site and world-renowned green oasis in the heart of Vancouver.

West Coast Rainforest

Stanley Park features one of the world's premiere urban forests—and much of the 400-hectare (1,000-acre) public park is still as densely forested today as it was back in the late 1800s. There are nearly a half a million trees, some hundreds of years old and as tall as 76 m (249 ft).

To experience the real Stanley Park, take one of the many paths less travelled. There are 27 km (17 mi) of trails winding through this lush rainforest of towering red cedar, hemlock and Douglas fir.

Much of the park was logged in the 1800s and early 1900s; some trails are actually old skid roads. There are stumps that still bear the tell-tale notches of early lumberjacks and their springboards. A few of the large, old coniferous trees in the park remain: check the "Big Tree" icon on the map to find them. → Map

Though a hurricane-force windstorm struck Vancouver in December 2006, destroying 10,000 Stanley Park trees and damaging the Seawall, an award-winning restoration plan created a stronger, more balanced and resilient urban forest in Vancouver's oldest, largest and most beloved park.

The Park Story

Since time immemorial, this place we call Stanley Park today has been the territory of the Coast Salish people of three local First Nations: the x'm 8k' y' m (Musqueam), Skwxwú7mesh (Squamish) and s'flw taŋ (Tsleil-Waututh). Many of the natural formations in the park have important First Nations stories and significance.

The creation of Stanley Park in 1888 gave rise to the Vancouver Board of Parks and Recreation, one of a few elected boards of this kind in Canada. Today the Park Board oversees Vancouver's 240 parks and 24 community centres, plus many pools, rinks, golf courses, marinas, sports fields and beaches.

Dogs Welcome!

DOGS Your pooch can have a great time in Stanley Park, too! Please follow a few important rules: Dogs must be on a leash and under control. Handlers must pick up after their pets. Please don't let dogs chase wildlife or enter environmentally sensitive areas. Take advantage of our fenced, off-leash area for small dogs near the Park Drive tennis courts. → Map

For the Family

Families and kids of all ages will find plenty to do in Stanley Park. The free Nature House on Lost Lagoon offers programs for adults and children, as well as interpretive displays. Stop in for nature books and cards. All proceeds benefit the Stanley Park Ecology Society. At the Vancouver Aquarium, one of the world's top aquariums, you can discover over 50,000 aquatic creatures up and close. Unique opportunity to enjoy some of the mysterious underwater species as a family or school. Build sandcastles on the shores of Second Beach or Third Beach, or play tag on one of the grassy meadows throughout the park.

PLAYGROUNDS There are four playgrounds in the park, including Ceperley Playground at the vintage red fire engine near Second Beach.

WATER PARK The Variety Kids Water Park at Lumberman's Arch is a kid's dream come true with water cannons, fountains and sprays. Don't forget sunscreen!

Wild, Wild Life

With its diverse habitats—from coniferous forest to boggy wetlands and rocky shores, Stanley Park teems with an amazing variety of wildlife. Douglas squirrels, raccoons, river otters, beavers, salamanders, purple sea stars and Pacific Great Blue Herons—at least 500 species are known to live in the park. Vancouver's spectacular oasis also plays a crucial role for many migratory birds that use the park as a stopover habitat where they can rest before continuing their long journey. Watch the Pacific Great Blue Herons live from Stanley Park: vancouver.ca/heron-cam.

Stanley Park Ecology Society plays a leadership role in the stewardship of Stanley Park through collaborative initiatives in education, research and conservation. The society offers weekly walks and talks on the flora and fauna of the park and operates the Nature House under the Lost Lagoon viewing plaza at the end of Alberni Street. Featured here are interpretive nature displays, resources and a kids' wildlife craft area. stanleyparkecolgy.ca → Map

PLEASE RESPECT WILD ANIMALS. GIVE THEM PLENTY OF ROOM AND NEVER FEED THEM.

First Nations

Coast Salish artwork in the park expresses the history of the land and people who lived here and surrounding regions. Installed in 2008, the first Coast Salish carvings are three cedar gateways by renowned Musqueam artist Susan A. Point at Brockton Point. Her People Amongst the People (pictured here) provides a formal welcome to all visitors. The second Coast Salish work is the Yelton Memorial Pole. Created by seven carvers led by Squamish artist Robert Yelton, it honours his mother, Rose Cole Yelton, who was born in Stanley Park and lived at the site until 1935. The most recent is Coast Salish artist Luke Marston's 2015 Shore to Shore bronze sculpture. It commemorates the ancestral connection between this area's Aboriginal and Portuguese communities. → Map
